Here are six helpful hints for safe and respectful Internet conduct.

1 Never give out your password to anyone, except your parent or guardian.

Most importantly, think about what you are posting. Would you be fine if a parent, teacher, college admission board, or future employer saw it?

2 Always use an avatar, never a real photo of yourself.

3 Keep your personal information private. The more people know about you, the more they have to use against you.

4 Respect others. If you wouldn't want it said about you, don't say it about someone else.

5 The Internet is NOT anonymous. Your computer has an address in the online world, just like your house has an address in the real world.

6 Posting online is the same as writing with a permanent marker—it cannot be erased!
